

WHY I'M RUNNING FOR SENATE:

There are several reasons I have decided to run for the U.S. Senate. First, I have felt unrepresented for too many years. Why is it that my positions, beliefs and ideas always seem in line with my co-workers, friends and family, but not with the actions of the government?

The growing issues of job loss, home foreclosures, energy costs and healthcare affect the working class citizens more than any federal politicians, yet most of these incumbent leaders have served so many terms that they are out of touch with the true effects of the issues we face. Without feeling the sting of the problems at hand, how can they make good judgments to render effective and appropriate solutions?

I'm afraid of the course our country is taking: a sea of debt, a wholesale loss of manufacturing jobs, inaction on social security and a federal government that can't seem to stop growing. Poor management at the federal level has trickled down to the state and local levels and now threatens the very fiber of this nation.

Lastly, I don't want to wake up in 20 years and find the American Dream gone, our Constitutional Republic on the ropes and all of our God-given rights squandered. I choose to stand up now so that I know I didn't give up on our great nation without a fight.

So I run to represent my fellow citizens and offer my common sense problem-solving skills to navigate us through these perilous times. I chose to shoot for the federal government because that is where the problems are and where the solutions are needed. With incumbent George Voinovich leaving office there is a glimmer of light for the working class to achieve real representation in Washington. Together we can keep this country a great nation and a beacon to the world. Eric
